DETAILED ACTION

Applicants' arguments, filed 2/26/2009, have been fully considered but they are not deemed to be persuasive to support patentability. Rejections and/or objections not reiterated from previous office actions are hereby withdrawn. The following rejections and/or objections are either reiterated or newly applied. They constitute the complete set presently being applied to the instant application.

The election of species requirement regarding the specific species of GSK3 inhibitor compound has been withdrawn. Withdraw of claim 7 is also rescinded and claim 7 is now currently under examination.

Double Patenting

Claims 1-6, 8-10, 49 and 50 are rejected on the ground of nonstatutory obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 39-44 of U.S. Patent No. 7045519 (to Nuss et al.). Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because both are directed to inhibition of GSK3 with the compound CT-99025 and treatment of ischemic damage in a subject by such inhibition. This rejection is newly applied to claim 7. This rejection is maintained in view of the disapproval of the terminal disclaimer filed 2/26/2009.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 1-10, 49 and 50 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over WO 00/38675 (to Coughlan et al.; provided by Applicant), in view of Hsu et al. (J Stroke and Cerebrovasc. Dis. 2000, Vol. 9(6) Suppl. 2, 24-31).

Coughlan et al. teach GSK3 inhibitors in the treatment of acute stroke (see p. 5 and claims 1-11). The reference also teaches standard suitable dosage forms and administrations, including parenteral and oral (pages 10-11). The molecular weights of the compounds in the Coughlan et al. are considered to be inherent features of the compounds themselves. The reference does not specify treatment timing.

Hsu et al. teach the criticality of the treatment timing and duration after the onset of an ischemic stroke. The reference teaches that treatment is most effective for neuroprotection early during the event, i.e., within the first 1 to 2 hours, and treatment for reperfusion injury within the first 1 to 3 days (see abstract and pages 24-25). The reference states that neuronal injury evolves for days after focal ischemia and even weeks after a global insult, and the corresponding therapeutic time window may vary (p. 25 and 28).

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to administer a GSK3 inhibitor for treating stroke on the claimed dosing regimen, Having been taught by Hsu et al. that the treatment window for stroke is critical to the outcome, one would have been motivated by the desire to maximize efficacy of treatment by administering treatment at the known critical windows.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 5-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. The claims contain the limitation “a molecular weight below about...” [emphasis added]. It is unclear if this includes weights above the claimed molecular weights or those within a functional range (i.e., only “about”) of the recited weight.

Conclusion

No claims are allowed.
